Alba María Oviedo Castillejo Gutiérrez

Alba Oviedo Castillejo Gutiérrez is a graduate in Psychology, holds a Master's degree in Social Intervention Psychology, and is currently a PhD candidate under the FPU program in the Department of Social Psychology. Although her thesis focuses on developing a model of gender violence perpetration that includes the influence of motivational and attitudinal variables in men, she participates in various projects more broadly related to the perpetration and victimization of gender violence. Her goal is to contribute to the understanding of this social problem as part of the fight for a more just and equal society.
